 The road is rough turning from North liberty onto East William.

 Delaware streets are the worst streets I have ever encountered. I am dismayed at the lack of concern the city has for the conditions of the roads. Everywhere you look more and more houses and apartments are being built but Delaware cannot even accommodate the current population. The roads are in poor condition as well as 37 being a major route yet still only 2 lanes and it is a snails crawl to get through town.

 Although the city has resurfaced streets such as Winter, Sandusky, and London road over the past couple of year, Central avenue... the worst street in the city...only gets patched, and poorly at that

 I think everyone agrees that E. Central from Lake St. to the Point is in terrible condition. I would love to hear why this can't be remedied to match the reasonable condition of many other heavily traveled roads in the city.

 One cannot drive most streets without bumps or holes in the streets here in town. I've learn how to avoid most but sometimes you just cannot get around them. Sad.

 So many roads are so bad. It seems we patch and patch and can't make matches flat anyway. Some roads are fine and others barely passible. Union is bad, the terraces by oak Grove are horrendous. Central is a mess. It's not fun to drive through town.
-  Anonymous user's Opinion Responded  B Fair (major repairs, such as potholes, needed in a few areas)
 Central Ave is horrible and has been for years. Everytime it is patched or repaved, it falls apart rather quickly due to the amount of truck traffic on it. We need a bypass around the city for trucks so that they don't continue to destroy our roads within the city.
